Captain Fried to Command Liner

Hero of Sea Disasters Placed in Charge of New Manhattan

NEW YORK.—(P)—Capt. George Friedman, hero of thrilling rescues in the stormy north Atlantic, Sunday was named commander of the new United States liner Manhattan, to be launched at Camden, N. J., Saturday.

The Manhattan, a 30,000-ton ship, 705 feet long, is said by United States Lines to be 10,000 tons larger than any previous American-built merchantman.

Captain Fried, a modest, unassuming man, has been honored by American, English and Italian governments. He was welcomed officially by New York in its traditional ticker-tape style after he directed the rescue of the crew of a freighter. He was commended for his heroism by President Coolidge and a representative of King George.

A sturdy, blond, six-footer of Norse descent, Captain Fried was born in Worcester, Mass., and his early life was spent on a farm near there. At the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, he enlisted in the army, serving two years.

At the close of the war he joined the navy and served there until 1916, when he transferred to the merchant marine as third officer of the Solace. He was recalled to the navy shortly before the war and remained in the service until 1921.

On his return to the Merchant Marine, Captain Fried became chief officer of the United States liner President Grant, and was soon promoted to a similar position on the America and from that, in 1922, to the captaincy of the President Roosevelt.

In January, 1926, Captain Fried rescued by members of the crew of the freighter Antiope after standing by the helpless vessel in high seas for three days. For his heroism Captain Fried was awarded the Navy Cross and was decorated, as were members of the President Roosevelt's crew, by the British government. He received the personal thanks of King George for rescuing the British crew of the Antiope.

In 1928 he went back to the reconditioned America and in January of the following year rescued 32 men from the Italian freighter Florida, for which he was decorated by the Italian and United States governments.

In November, 1930, he steamed 10 hours toward the disabled Swedish vessel Orvidia and stood by while another ship removed the crew.

During the recent illness of Capt. A. B. Randall, the commodore of the United States Lines, Captain Fried commanded the Leviathan on three trips. Since the return of Commodore Randall, Captain Fried has been acting as port captain of the United States Lines.

Cotton, Stand Off During Last Week

Prices Show Resistance Despite Slackened Volume of Demand

MEMPHIS.—(U. S. Department Agriculture)—The cotton market during the period November 21 to 27 was rather quiet with price fluctuations narrow and quotations for the week but little changed compared with those November 20.

Demand for spot cotton was said to have been only fair with buyers continuing to show more interest in the grades below strict low middling with the result that such cottons were said to have brought full prices. Demand for these low grades covered almost all lengths of staple.

According to the Weather Bureau rains were quite general over the cotton belt during the past week.

Average price of middling on the ten markets November 27 was 5.55c compared with 5.73c November 20 and 9.74c on the corresponding day last season.

Reported sales of spot cotton by the ten markets for the week amounted to 152,428 bales, compared with 240,393 the previous week and 115,131 with the like week last season.

Exports from August 1 to November 27 this season amounted to about 2,700,000 bales, compared with about 3,100,000 a year ago. According to the New York Cotton Exchange Service, world consumption of American cotton for the first three months of this season amounted to 2,900,000 bales compared with 2,600,000 for the same period last season, and 3,600,000 for the same period last season.

According to the same source the Orient was spinning very much more cotton than last season but the continent was still lagging.

According to the Bureau of the Census, there were operated in the United States at some time during the month of October 25,000,000 cotton spinning spindles compared with 25,900,000 for September and 25,700,000 for October 1930. According to the same source there were gained prior to November 14th from the growth of 1931, 14,200,000 running bales compared with 12,000,000 and 11,900,000 respectively for the two seasons before for the same period.

Five Murder Cases For Miller Court

First Will Be That of Sam Day Held in Death of Sheriff

TEXARKANA.—Five murder trials are set for hearing in the Arkansas side Circuit Court this week. The first to be called will be that of Sam Day, indicted as the slayer of Sheriff Walter Harris, who was shot and killed while raiding a still eight miles south of here last July. Day will be brought here from Little Rock, where he has been held in the penitentiary for safekeeping since he was arrested shortly after the killing. It is reported he will plead self defense.

John McCall, chief deputy sheriff on the Texas side, will be tried for the second time for killing George Griffin, paroled convict from the Texas penitentiary, who was killed at his home on the Arkansas side of town during a raid by Arkansas officers last spring. McCall, who was with the Arkansas officers, is alleged to have fired the shot which killed Griffin. At the previous trial the jury failed to agree. Melt Larey, charged with killing Claud Pilgreen, near Fouke, and Kirby Tyson charged with killing Newell Combs, at Ravenna last year, also are scheduled for trial.

Garage Owner and Customer Kidnaped

Bandits Hold Up Pair, Ride to Woods in Car, Bind Them in School

CONWAY, Ark.—(P)—Kidnaping Leo Crafton, owner of the United Motor company, and W. H. Shivers, of Little Rock, a customer, after robbing Crafton of about $100, two robbers left them bound in a school house near Higgason, about 62 miles from here.

The robbers approached Crafton Sunday morning as he was supplying Shivers with gasoline and asked him to change a bill. On his reply that he was unable to, one of them drew a pistol and ordered Crafton and Shivers in to the office.

Crafton was forced to open the safe and the robbers took the money, handing back several checks.

Hurried into Shivers' automobile the two men were leisurely driven through several villages and taken to the school house where they were bound.

Gaining their freedom shortly after noon, Crafton and Shivers walked to nearby house and notified Conway officers.

New 16-Cylinder Lincoln Displayed

Price-Arrow Introduced 1932 "Twelve" at New York Salon

NEW YORK.—The 27th annual automobile salon was opened Sunday night in the Hotel Commodore, with exhibits of more than 60 cars custom-built by American and European specialists in automobiles body making.

The Lincoln Motor Company introduced its new line of 16-cylinder cars for 1932, with bodies specially designed by eight custom coach manufacturers.

The Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company has on display several models of its recently introduced 12-cylinder cars with special coach work by Bruun and Lehman. The 16-cylinder Marmon is shown with custom bodies by Hayes.

As a forerunner of the national automobile show to be held in January, the salon will be watched by the industry in general for indications of public interest and purchasing power. While the exposition is in no sense a "selling show" it will give an index of prospective orders in the higher priced field during the coming season.

Among mechanical innovations revealed are new methods of springing, including the use of springs to eliminate vibration; special mountings on rubber of multi-cylindrical engines; greater rigidity of frame construction and new valve mechanisms. A Lancia model has a new feature, in the independent suspension of its front wheels, which will be watched with close interest by the automobile industry.

The Packard Motor Car Company which is not exhibiting at the salon this year, opened a special display of its cars in its building on Broadway. The coach work shown is by the company's own custom builders, as well as by Dietrich and Reilston. Several types of convertibles, open and closed cars are included in the exhibit, all mounted on the longest Packard chassis of 147 1-8 inch wheel base.

Tuberculosis Seal Sale Begins Here

Mrs. Dorsey McRae Opens Christmas Seal Campaign in Hope

In discussing the importance of the annual Tuberculosis Christmas Seal Sale Mrs. Dorsey McRae, seal sale chairman for Hope called attention Monday to some of the developments in the tuberculosis clinics which have been held this year in 16 counties in Arkansas.

"More than 2000 persons were examined during the year," Mrs. McRae said. "Of the total, 888 told the story of having lived in contact with tuberculosis; 376 were diagnosed as suspected cases; 436 were found to be positive cases. Of these 117 were far advanced. Nothing could more pointedly emphasize the importance of the case-finding campaigns upon which state and county tuberculosis workers and other health agencies have embarked."

"The chances of cure are many times greater in the early stages; 85 per cent of the patients recover in incipient cases whereas only 15 per cent of advanced cases get well."

"The increased facilities of the Booneville and the McRae sanatoria, the growth of public health nursing and full-time health officers make the case-finding work of the Tuberculosis Association most encouraging."

"Patients who, for any reason whatever, cannot be admitted to the sanatorium, may be instructed how to care for themselves or be cared for in the home, as to give them a chance for recovery. And they are taught how to protect others who come in contact with them. This is most important for their tuberculosis causes tuberculosis; every case comes from another. Every time a clinic is held in a county, many people learn more about tuberculosis than they have ever known before and this knowledge becomes a great help in the fight to prevent the disease."

"Money is needed for all this work. Money is needed for greater community undertaking. And this fund is raised by the sale of Christmas Seals."

The annual Thanksgiving day game between Nashville and Hope High Schools, which was postponed last Thursday on account of rain, will be played here Wednesday night, December 2, Coach Charles Wilkin announced Monday.

Present prospects, however, are for fairly good weather this week, and a large crowd at the game Wednesday night.

Couple Jailed in Strange Shooting

Wife Blames Sniper for Wounding of New York Pair

NEW YORK.—Martin Pike, 40, and his wife, Minnie, 32, were shot Sunday as they lay in bed in their apartment in the Bronx. Although the wife blamed a sniper and the husband refused to discuss the shooting, police arrested both on charges of felonious assault.

Fully clothed, the pair entered a drug store around the corner from their home, at 11:30 and told a clerk they had been shot. While Mr. Pike was answering questions her husband entered a phone booth and called an ambulance.

An ambulance surgeon attended them and then patrolmen took them to a police station for questioning. Pike refused to talk. His wife said she thought the bullets came through the window.

The two were then taken to Morrisania hospital, where both were found to have bullet wounds in the right thigh.

At their apartment police found the bloodstained pajamas of both in the bedroom which showed signs of a struggle. Two empty 25 caliber shells were on the floor. A number of tin bottles were in the living room.

Lewis' Strange Fame

With death the other day of Colonel Isaac Newton Lewis is a reminder of the queer kind of fame that some men win.

Colonel Lewis had fame—a great deal of it—and it still endures. His name dots almost every page of any history of the fighting in the World War; it will live, perhaps, for centuries, unless men find some way of doing without armies, navies and military airplanes. Yet his name, in itself, means nothing whatever to the ordinary citizen.

Briefly, Colonel Lewis was the inventor of the Lewis machine gun. He resigned from the American army shortly before the World War began, in order to submit his new weapon to foreign governments—the United States government not being able, at that time, to work up much interest in it.

English army officers found in the gun just what they had been looking for. They ordered thousands of the colonel's light, simply-constructed machine guns, and during the war the weapon proved one of the British infantryman's best friends. Aviators used them extensively; when America entered the war the United States ordered quantities of them. Colonel Lewis became extremely wealthy, and his name got into the records of innumerable battles.

And that, when you stop to think about it, is a queer way to win fame—to have one's name given to an instrument of death. Not one man in a thousand knows anything about Colonel Lewis himself; but everyone knows about the Lewis gun. Colonel Lewis seems destined to go down to history in company with the illustrious Dr. Guillotin of France.

No one, except a historian, knows anything about Dr. Guillotin—but what literate human being has failed to hear of the guillotine? The doctor, as it happens, was a humane Frenchman who devised a beheading machine in order to make the deaths of condemned criminals as quick and painless as possible; a few years later the French Revolution came along to make the instrument a world-famous symbol of blood and terror.

There are others in the same company. There is Colonel Shrapnell, of the British army—you can guess what he invented. There is Count von Zeppelin, who—during the war, at least—was known for the horror that lurked in the night skies.

It is a strange, rather uncomfortable way to win fame.

Paying Your Taxes

MR. AVERAGE CITIZEN, who groans deeply whenever he has to pay his taxes, might be interested in this little story about a Japanese truck gardener living near San Diego, Calif.

This Japanese had four children, all of whom went to school. That seemed to him an inestimable privilege; so, one day recently, he called at the office of the local school board and amazed the members by handing them $100 as a free-will offering—an expression of his appreciation of the blessings of government. To be sure, he was already a taxpayer, doing his full share toward supporting the school system. But he felt impelled to show his gratitude more amply.

This little story points its own moral. How many of us, who pay our taxes with reluctance, ever stop to think of all that our tax money buys us?

Let Warriors War

DR. WILLIAM MATHER LEWIS, president of Lafayette College, proposed the other day that if we ever have another war the draft should apply only to men between 40 and 60 years of age, and that members of cabinets, parliaments and congresses who brought about the war should be the first to be called; and whatever objections there might be from a military standpoint, this at least expresses a thought that a lot of people have been nourishing recently.

As Dr. Lewis points out, the men who make war never fight in it. That job is reserved for the youngsters. The older ones sit safely at home and talk about "fighting the war to the last man." Whatever else you can say about it, his plan would at least make the distribution of burdens a little more equitable.

"Glorious Isolation?"

JAMES W. GERARD, former ambassador to Germany, advocated in a recent speech that Uncle Sam maintain an army of 500,000 men, an adequate navy "and a resolution to sit tight and mind his own business." His formula is at least simple and easy to understand; the only trouble with it might come from an attempt to define just exactly what minding his own business might include.

Traditionally, nothing that happens beyond the seas is Uncle Sam's business. The fear of entangling foreign alliances reflects that feeling; presumably it was behind Mr. Gerard's advice. Yet it has become more and more evident, in recent years, that the nation simply cannot shut its eyes to events in Europe and Asia. Whether it likes it or not, the United States has a very direct concern in international affairs. Bankers and exporters to half the world—how is the old gentleman going to ignore the doings of his neighbors?

SOCIETY NEWS

Mrs. Sid Henry Telephone 321

Some day, some distant day, the mind shall know
The sum of all the beauty that it
And thoughts, freed of their weight of Lighly as butterflies to petal peaks
Of truth in sunlit gardens of tomorrow.
The mind shall know the secret of the skies,
The wind's confession, and the gentle sorrow
Of ancient cedars when the daylight
dies.
O heart that yearns to know—the hour
will come When every leaf shall tell its long hushed story,
Each star reveal its far sylvan,
Each moon proclaim its dim, forgotten
glory,
Over the mind's dark sea, the will's
diamond,
Beauty shall break like dawn, some distant day—Selected.

Increase Crop By Acreage Cut

Fewer Acres Yield More And Are Better
Cultivated

MOULTREE, Ga., (AP)—The "shrink" system of farming pays—and pays even in hard times.

Georgia farmers, and especially those of Colquitt county, whose agricultural plan attracted national attention last year, have found that if fewer acres are tilled the farm has "shrunk" somewhat—as to land under cultivation.

But fewer acres can be tended with less work and expense, and Colquitt farmers have found they can make more on fewer acres than on the bigger area because of the concentrated effort and fertilization and attention generally.

Colquitt county produced more cotton this year than ever, though the acreage had been reduced. Greater volume of at least four or five other crops was also produced on fewer acres.

Colquitt's plan for diversification of crops has been copied in many southern states, and inquiries have been received from all parts of the nation.
Commenting on this year's work in the county, a Colquitt farm leader
said:

"Diversification seems to interfere
very little with cotton production.
We had this year about the largest watermelon crop we ever had. We had as much tobacco as we ever had,
and possibly more.

"We had the biggest peanut crop in history. The corn crop was as large as usual, and there was a large potato crop with a lot of hay that followed. It did not prevent the growing of cotton, though it meant that the cotton must be made on fewer acres than we used a few years ago for the same sized crop."

wounding him in the left arm. The arm was amputated but failed to save his life. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Summit of Sims, Ark.

How CARDUI
Helps Women

"I WAS passing through a critical time in my life,
and I suffered a great deal,"

says Mrs. Mat Howard, of Qullan, Texas. "I improved
very much after I had taken Cardui for a while. Since then, I have given Cardui to my five daughters. As each one of them arrived at womanhood, I gave her Cardui for several months. I found they were less nervous and felt stronger. All of them have continued the use of Cardui in their homes.
In my home we have all been better for having taken it."

Chicago Follies to Be presented Here

Ches Davis, Leading His Group of Dancers to Appear Wednesday

Chicago Follies—Cont
The Chicago Follies, which will be the added attraction, at the Sabinger Theatre for a two days engagement beginning Wednesday will be found a fast, furious medley of songs and steps liberally larded with comedy of the sure fire, side splitting variety, and served with a lavish investiture of costumes and scenery.

Ches Davis and Gene "Honey Gal"
Cobb occupy stellar positions. Davis has been at the head of his own shows for many years and is well known throughout the South. Cobb will be remembered as having been last featured with Neil O'Brien's Minstrels.
The blackface comedy of this pair is without a peer and has never failed to find instant favor with audiences.

The Chicago Follies Singing Stage
Band combines delightful harmony singing with her hot rhythm and furni-ishes the musical complement of the show.

Viewed from any angle, the ten dancing Dixie darlings are everything the name implies. They are the personification of youth, beauty and pep and will show Saenger audiences what stepping steppers can really do.

Bobby Taylor brings a band of jazz
all her own, and Buddy Ryan furnishes more light entertainment.

The Chicago Follies has played for more than 60 consecutive weeks in Dixie and has more return engagements and more shattered attendance records to its credit than any show seen locally in many years.
